1. The VYSKOV (P 50/N 71) airfield (see Annex) had been used as an emergency airfield during World War II and was improved in 1948 and early 1949. About 15 Trainers were parked in the two hangars on the western edge of the field. Flight training was done during the day and night. Twenty to thirty fighters and three-engine aircraft were permanently parked in the eastern section of the field.
2. Two hundred and fifty to three hundred Czech Air Force soldiers were quartered in the barracks buildings of the field. The unit was presumably part of the personnel of the PROSTEJOV (P 50/N 73) military airfield. Thirty air policemen were also stationed there. There were no concrete runways.

25X1 Comment:

No other reports on the field have been received. The field is apparently being used by the PROSTEJOV pilot school.
